

Math and Reading Night

Parents and students flooded in long after school hours to, believe it or not, go to school! Parents enjoyed watching their children and the teachers demonstrate the daily tasks they accomplish in school each day, not only in Math and Reading but in their Science and History classes as well. Parents appreciated the possibility to see what goes on inside the classroom and were excited by what they saw. One parent stated, "I was most impressed with the Cycle of Life poster presentations! The teams were so enthusiastic and having fun! The excellent teamwork and presentation skills was most impressive." The event lasted about an hour, but by the time parents left, they had a very clear idea of what a day in the life of a Thales student looks like. From the engaging Math Meeting Board to the hands-on Science discoveries, Thales students are immersed in educational and experiential lessons that will positively influence their lives. We were delighted to have our students and parents join us for the successful Math and Reading Night and look forward to more school events to come!
